

The Leibniz-Institut für Wissensmedien (IWM; Knowledge Media Research Center) is an innovative research institute investigating knowledge acquisition, knowledge exchange and collaboration via modern education and communication media. IWM is part of the Leibniz Association whose scientific achievement in a dynamic research context is guided by and evaluated according to international standards.

Within the framework of the research alliance „digilog@bw - Digitalisierung im Dialog“ (running until April, 14, 2022) we are looking for a committed starting at the next possible date.

Researcher (part-time 65%)

Your tasks are the conception, conduction and analysis of empirical studies on the topic „How do KI-based voice assistants influences information search and evaluation? Additionally, the role of media competence shall be studied and a measurement instrument shall be developed. The project is part of the research alliance „digilog@bw - Digitalisierung im Dialog“ (Digitization in dialogue – project lead University of Mannheim; partners from humanities, social sciences, legal sciences, economics, media and communication science, ethics and computer science). Goal of the research alliance is to identify and interdisciplinary analyze the influence of the digitization on humans and the resulting societal changes to create the basis for shaping the digital change in a technically and positive way for the benefit of people. The focus is on autonomy, knowledge and participation.

In the sphere of the described project the production of a doctorate is welcome and will be expressly supported.

Your profile:

- Above average degree (master, diploma or equivalent) in psychology, communication science or a related discipline
- Strong interest in the consequences of the digitalization, media competence and underlying processes
- Experience in the planning, conduction and analysis of empirical studies
- Very good command of English and preferable also German
- interest in interdisciplinary cooperation with cooperation partners

We offer:

- A cooperative and social psychologically oriented team
- Cooperation with international top scientists
- A salary in accordance with the collective agreement for public employees in Germany (TV-L, E13 – gross salary at least € 31.175,00).

Please contact Sonja Utz (phone +49 7071 979308 or email: s.utz@iwm-tuebingen.de) with further questions (if you have further questions).

Please submit your application (in a single pdf file) – including a cover letter, curriculum vitae, certificates and names and addresses of two or more references – by June, 3, 2019 to personal@iwm-tuebingen.de (reference number 1002-2019).

Applications from women and men are treated equally by IWM. We explicitly welcome foreign applications. Disabled persons with equivalent qualification will be favoured.